DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-5, 9-14, 16-18, 31, 33-36 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent No. 6,261,850 B1 (Marsh) in view of applicant's admission.

Marsh discloses a process to form a conductive material with a focused ion beam deposition using two precursor gasses one comprising an organometallic platinum compound and the other comprising a non-conductive precursor that if used by itself would form a dielectric layer. (col. 2, lines 44-65). Marsh further discloses that the deposition of the conductive material is controlled by controlling the flow, and thus concentration, of the precursor gases. (col. 9, lines 20-30) Marsh discloses injecting the precursor gases simultaneously through separate inlet ports. (col. 9, lines 1-8).

Marsh does not disclose that the conductive material has a high resistivity that falls between 5×10^4 and 7×10^4 ohms per square.

In their response applicant admitted that the resistivity of the conductive material layer is dependent on its size, thus recognizing that the size of the layer is a result effective variable. Based on this admission, it would have been obvious to one with ordinary skill in the specific art to form the layer to have a high resistivity since it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art. In re Aller, 105 USPQ 233.

It would further be obvious to one with ordinary skill in the specific art to inlet the gasses through the same port, since it has been held that the provision of adjustability involves only routine skill in the art. In re Stevens, 101 USPQ 284 (CCPA 1954).

It would be inherent that the voltage to current relationship for the conductive film will be linear since that is the relationship between voltage and current.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 6-8, 15 and 32 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

4. The indicated allowability of claims 2 and 4-5 is withdrawn in view of applicant's admission and application of US Patent No. 6,261,850 B1 (Marsh). Rejections based on the newly cited reference(s) follow.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-18 and 31-36 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection. In light of the amendment made and of the arguments and evidence submitted in the last response the examiner has withdrawn the previous rejection and replaced it with the above. The rejection is based on a reference that was cited in the PTO-892 attached to the previous office action.
